

Designing Buildings Wiki

Newsletter 11 March 2013

We've teamed up with The Chartered Institute of Building (CIOB) to launch an open competition for the best new article added to Designing Buildings Wiki.

The competition is open to anyone; students and practitioners, CIOB members and non-members, people from the UK and the rest of the world. Articles can cover subjects to do with property development, law, project management, design, construction, history or theory.

As well as receiving £500, the winning article will be featured on the Designing Buildings Wiki home page, and the winner will be invited to write a blog post for the home page. We will also feature four runners-up who will receive commendations from the CIOB, and all suitable entries will be added to the site.

It's a great opportunity to win some cash, get a CIOB commendation on your CV and raise your profile at the same time.
