BSRIA announce support for Designing Buildings Wiki

BSRIA has announced it is joining the family of high-profile sponsors supporting Designing Buildings Wiki.

Jayne Sunley, Information & Knowledge Manager at BSRIA, said: "Designing Buildings Wiki has an invaluable role to play in this digital revolution as a provider of innovative and relevant information, from the industry, for the industry."

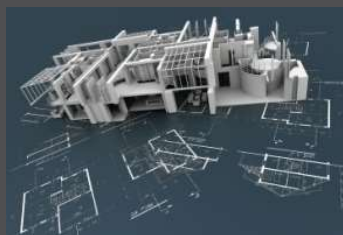

Skills to build

A report by the London Chamber of Commerce and Industry and KPMG suggests the industry needs a 51% increase in training provision in London and the South East if housing targets are to be met and infrastructure projects delivered.

BIM resources

We've created a list of links to key BIM resources. It covers everything from standards and protocols to templates and guidance documents.

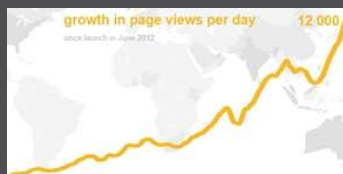

So what have we missed? If you can think of anything, add it in.

Rapid growth

The 1,700th article has been added to Designing Buildings Wiki, and we now get more than 13,000 page views a day.

Knowledge standard

Should all construction industry knowledge be prepared in the same way? Let us know your thoughts.

Writing services

If you have ideas for articles but don't have the time to write them, we can do it for you.

Whether it's a matter of re-working some existing material, researching a subject, or helping you develop a strategy for your content, we can provide a service to suit.
